- long history
- vibrant and varied community context

- We are learners; from nursery starters to head teacher, everyone is on a learning journey at Chester Blue Coat.
- Each and every one of us is unique and it is the awareness of this and the focus on "no outsiders" that gives the school a distinct communal character.

Why are we here at Chester Blue Coat? What is our purpose?

- to educate the children who pass through our doors
- to support the families they come from
- to model a positive, inclusive, empathetic, energetic approach to life
- To learn and to help.

What do we want to achieve?

- the best we can for the people in our care - academically, emotionally, morally, and socially
- Positive outcomes for all - happy, healthy and well-educated pupils who will contribute positively to our world both now and in the future.

What do you know about God that fits with our whole school context?

- I am not sure I know anything about God, but any God I would give the time of day to, would be proud to lend his/her/their name to the work, and achievements of Chester Bluecoat School
- God is kind - Christian values provide a model to live by but we are equally respectful of those with other faiths or no faith.
